

APPOINTMENT OF SENIOR DIRECTOR, BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT

AN INTRODUCTION
MARCH 2017

Introduction from Cathryn Ross, Chief Executive

Water is not a dry issue.

The water sector in England and Wales has come a long way in the past 27 years. At privatisation, polluted beaches and rivers and neglected infrastructure meant we were seen as the 'dirty man of Europe'.

The regulation of this sector was entrusted to the Water Services Regulation Authority (Ofwat) which has maintained a steady hand in driving and incentivising the sector to deliver and to improve. Over the period since privatisation, the water companies have invested more than £120 billion in maintaining and improving services for consumers and the environment. Today, for example, the amount of water lost through leaks is down by about a third since the mid-1990s. In addition, salmon have returned to the River Mersey, once considered one of the most polluted in Europe. All of this has been delivered efficiently too – a litre of tap water, supplied and taken away, costs less than half a penny.

But the world is changing. The water sector faces new problems and very different challenges. In the future, climate change may mean we get more droughts and more floods, making it harder to maintain resilient supplies. Our population is growing, putting more pressure on the water we use. Lifestyle changes have increased our appetite for water in our homes, our work places and our places of leisure. The changing social and economic landscape also means we need to reconsider how business operates and how customers are able to afford their water and sewerage bills.

Ofwat needs to be at forefront of determining and implementing a regulatory system that will protect customers' interests, drive efficiencies and innovation, enable efficient companies to finance their functions and to ensure that the 'promises of privatisation' are delivered. We all need sustainable solutions to these problems.

To do this, Ofwat needs to be at the very top of its game.

Our Senior Directors are key to this. We work closely together and with our board to shape Ofwat's portfolio and get the best out of all of our people, to deliver our strategy and improve the experience of customers and society. And there are more opportunities to do this than ever before, with the opening of the business customer market in England to competition in April 2017 and the reforms we are bringing to wholesale markets through our forthcoming 2019 price review.

Thank you for your interest in joining Ofwat at what is a very exciting time for us and the sector we regulate. We look forward to receiving your application.

Cathryn Ross
Ofwat Chief Executive

ABOUT OFWAT

Ofwat is the independent economic regulator of water companies and it wants people to have trust and confidence in water. It incentivises water companies to do what their customers want.

But, it faces fundamental challenges with population growth, climate change and rising customer expectation. These put extra pressure on resilience, environmental quality, affordability and tackling water scarcity.

To meet these challenges, it must be ambitious and far-sighted. It will:

- focus on promoting and protecting customers' and society's interests
- work openly and collaboratively to find answers
- promote vibrant markets that deliver innovation
- empower its passionate, talented and knowledgeable people

These steps will help to secure reliable, resilient, affordable services. Meaning people have trust and confidence in water.

Ofwat has been delivering successful regulation since privatisation of the sector in 1989. But it doesn't stand still. It is continuing to evolve its approach to ensure that customers get the best deal. This means that its work is challenging, stimulating and fast-paced.

PROGRAMMES

It delivers its work through a number of programmes and projects, and is currently carrying out work in the following areas. You can find out more about its work by looking at its duties, its business plan and its forward programme.

Strategy and Planning

Its strategy needs to drive business activity – both within Ofwat and within the water sector as a whole. It also constantly monitors its own progress towards its goals and those of the companies it regulates.

Casework

Where an issue arises that can't be solved directly between a customer and a supplier, it can investigate the issue and determine a fair dispute resolution. It uses its determination and enforcement powers to protect customers and to encourage suppliers to improve the way markets work within the water sector.

Finance and Governance

It has a responsibility to help water companies demonstrate appropriate levels of financial resilience and customer service. It also monitors changes in company ownership to make sure that they are in customers' best interests.

Retail Market Opening

It is currently working with other key stakeholders to open the market for business, charity and public sector customers in England (and eligible customers in Wales) in April 2017. This will enable them to choose their water services supplier.

Water 2020

Its work in this area involves developing future markets and regulation to deliver reform within the sector. Its emphasis is on the five-yearly price reviews, the next of which will take place in 2019.

Thames Tideway

Its role with this work is to set out the framework for regulating the construction for the Thames Tideway Tunnel, in the best interest of customers, the environment and wider society.

Business Transformation

It wants to make Ofwat the most efficient and effective organisation it can be to support the delivery of its strategy for the good of the sector – and for customers.

Compliance and Assurance

The programme builds on and embeds changes introduced by the Business Transformation Programme. It will help track our general progress in delivering our strategy and will also deliver our strategic priority to ensure that Ofwat has the skills, experience, systems, processes and culture that support our new strategy. In doing so, it will help ensure that Ofwat is trusted and respected, working at the leading edge, challenging ourselves and others to build trust and confidence in water and waste water services.

VALUES AND BEHAVIOURS

All Ofwat's work is underpinned by its values. They set out how it behaves and what it aspires to be:

We are Ofwat

We aspire to act in line with our values in everything we do

S	A	I	L	O	R
Support	Ambition	Integrity	Learning	Ownership	Respect
We work collaboratively, we stand by each other and are committed to each other's wellbeing	We aim high in the best interests of customers, the environment and society	We act and speak honestly, and have the confidence to challenge and be challenged. We have difficult conversations when needed and we will do what we say we will	We love to learn about new ideas and different ways of doing things and we help each other to develop and grow	We each take responsibility for our own actions and care about our impact on others	We value people for who they are, and the ideas and perspectives they bring

THE ROLE

ROLE EXPECTATIONS: SENIOR DIRECTOR

Ofwat has an ambitious strategy that puts it at the leading edge in economic regulation, at the forefront of developing and implementing an economic regulatory regime that uses market mechanisms and regulatory tools to protect customers' interests, drive efficiencies and innovation, enable efficient companies to finance their functions and ensure that the 'promises of privatisation' are delivered. This requires, strong, committed strategic leadership from the very top of the organisation, and this is what you will provide every day and in everything you do.

Its work is high profile and fast moving, within a dynamic and agile environment. The work that you'll be involved in every day will be about helping it to deliver its strategy, helping it to be the regulator it wants to be and helping the sector to deliver outcomes that matter to customers and society.

You will be a member of its Senior Leadership Team (SLT). This involves providing support to its Chief Executive in her role in ensuring the effectiveness and efficiency of Ofwat's portfolio in delivering its strategy. You will identify, understand and proactively manage the risks and opportunities it faces corporately and across its portfolio. As part of SLT you will be responsible for ensuring that it has the capacity and capability it needs across the office to deliver its strategy. You will take a strategically aligned corporate approach in everything you do. You will provide strong, strategic, clear and committed leadership across the office – not only to your own programmes and resource pool, more in relation to everything it does. You will champion and role model Ofwat's values and behaviours, and support others in doing so. You will provide support and challenge to other members of SLT, helping to ensure it is a high-performing team.

You will have a high degree of accountability to the Chief Executive for strategic delivery. This may be as Senior Responsible Officer (SRO) of one or more of its programmes, or may be in relation to one of its critical cross-cutting functions. As SRO you will be accountable for the delivery of the benefits of your programme, in line with agreed milestones and budget. You will have delegated budget responsibility in line with this. If you have particular professional responsibilities you may (also) have responsibilities in respect of signing off certain types of expenditure in line with its governance framework and internal controls.

You may be a Strategic Resource Manager (SRM) for one of its resource pools. All of Ofwat's people sit within one of its seven resource pools, reflecting the primary skills they bring to Ofwat. If you are an SRM you will be accountable to the Chief Executive for ensuring that your resource pool has within it the skills and experience that Ofwat needs. You will also be expected to understand how those needs will evolve in the coming years and to have plans in place to ensure that it continues to have the skills and experience it needs in future. This will include taking an active role in workforce planning, learning and development (including informal and on-the-job opportunities) and succession planning.

You may be the head of one of its professional groups. This will see you responsible (working closely with the relevant SRMs) for ensuring provision of professional training in your area. This may involve formal CPD accredited course or conferences but you are encouraged to think creatively about how best to ensure Ofwat keeps its people up to date in their professions, including informal means. All of its Senior Directors will have specific professional skills, whether in Head of Profession roles or not, in relation to which you will be seen as a leader across the organisation. You will create opportunities to ensure you use your professional skills to contribute across Ofwat's portfolio.

You will be an exemplary ambassador for Ofwat, remaining on-message and strategically aligned at all times. You will have significant stakeholder engagement responsibilities, which will include engagement across a wide variety of topics with its key stakeholders such as government officials, regulated companies, consumer bodies, and NGOs. It may also include speaking at major events, attending select committees, and media engagement.

You will be expected to attend board meetings as appropriate. You will be expected to contribute proactively to debates across the full range of topics under consideration (not only those relating to your programmes, resource pool or profession). You will be constructive and supportive, but challenging where necessary. You will be succinct and on-point. You will also participate fully in the Senior Leadership Team's planning and preparation for board, to maximise the effectiveness of the discussion.

People who are new to the Senior Director level will find the learning curve steep. You will need to view things from a wider perspective, seeing more of the linkages and interdependences between your areas of work and Ofwat's portfolio, between Ofwat's work and that of wider stakeholders. You will also need to be comfortable with accountability for big ticket issues and substantial budgets. You will need to get used to the 'always-on' demands of leadership. Your time management and prioritisation skills will be at a premium, as your work is dominated by issues that are both urgent and important. Your skills in delegating, managing and coaching others will become more important for the same reason.

As a Senior Director, you will have a thorough understanding of the business of economic regulation, what Ofwat is trying to achieve and its regulatory model. You will also appreciate what this means in practice for how it uses its regulatory toolkit and what this means for how it works (its operating model), the skills and experience, values and behaviours it needs. You will have excellent strategic and tactical thinking skills, and understand the linkages and interdependencies across its work, enabling you to help maximise the value it delivers across its portfolio.

You will also have a good understanding of the external environment in which Ofwat operates. You will be able to see how its strategy and its work fits with the work and interests of its key stakeholders. You will have excellent abilities to engage with key stakeholders, including an ability to explain the more technical aspects of what it does in a way that resonates with your audience. You will be proactive in getting the best value out of everything Ofwat delivers through skilled use of stakeholder engagement and communications tools, working with its experts as appropriate.

You will also have first class leadership and management skills. This will include tools and techniques that enable you to drive delivery in its programme and project environment. But it will also include the ability to inspire, engage and empower people, so that every individual makes the best contribution they can, learning as they go, so Ofwat creates a whole that is greater than the sum of its parts.

You will have an inclusive and open approach, that sees you proactively consulting others, seeking challenge, and keeping people updated on developments. You will also have sound judgement, and be unafraid to take decisions when necessary. You will be confident, but self-aware and able to ask for help when you need it. You will be energetic, self-motivated, hard-working and resilient.

SENIOR DIRECTOR, BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT

The Senior Director, Business Improvement, will be someone with a real passion for Ofwat and its strategy. You will be willing and able to develop a good knowledge of what it is trying to achieve and the work it does, and be hungry to seek out opportunities to improve its capability to do its job efficiently and effectively.

Ofwat has successfully completed a major transformation programme over the last three years. It has implemented a new operating model with all its work undertaken within programmes and projects, improving accountability, strategic alignment, financial management and the management of risk and opportunity. It has restructured to support this, and has transformed its physical and virtual working environment to support greater agility and flexibility. Its people today see Ofwat as a great place to work and its working environment is a big component of this.

It now needs someone who will take it on the next stage of its journey.

As the sector it regulates becomes more dynamic and diverse, its workload is increasing in volume and pace and changing in nature. As Senior Director, Business Improvement you will lead its Fit for the Future programme

(commencing April 2017), helping Ofwat to identify how its ways of working and its resourcing need to evolve further to help it continue to deliver its strategy and benefit water customers. You will see its relatively small scale as an advantage, as it will enable you to get to know us, make real improvements quickly, and see the difference you make. It will be critically important for you to build relationships across the office, to understand what is needed and what constraints exist, and to work with others across the office (including its policy managers, analysts, lawyers and project managers) to move Ofwat forward. You will provide strategic direction to the programme, but will not be afraid of being 'hands on' when needed to get things done.

There will be a particular emphasis in the next year or so on the development of its workforce planning capability, and on the alignment to that of its strategies for recruitment, learning and development and secondments and loans. Linked to this is its aim to become a more 'porous' organisation, making better use of secondments, loans, and partnership working. You will not be responsible for delivering its workforce plan or 'networked organisation' – other SRMs and SROs will be key as well – but you will be accountable for its success.

Through Ofwat's drive for continuous improvement, its capability and ways of working need to work with and support the delivery of its major regulatory programmes. The most immediate challenge here is the setting up of its new Market Outcomes and Enforcement Programme, designed to pull together its work on the business customer retail market in England, which opens to competition for the first time in April 2017. It is also approaching the delivery of its next review of the prices charged by the monopoly water companies, which will begin in 2018 and end in December 2019. Both of these programmes place different demands on the office, and will drive change in some aspects of how it works, and limit its ability to deliver change in other areas.

Further, it is about to embark on significant change to the way its support services – finance, procurement, HR, IT and facilities – are provided. The way it has provided these services to date has served it well, but will not cope well with its increasing workload and more dynamic, fast-paced ways of working. Ofwat will take the decision on its support service delivery model in March 2017, but it is clear that any future delivery model is likely to include greater reliance on external suppliers and partnership working (possibly with commercial organisations or other public bodies). The Senior Director, Business Improvement will be accountable for the successful implementation of the new model.

You will be the SRM for its Operations pool. This pool currently comprises around 43 people who provide the support services on which it depends, including finance and procurement, IT, facilities, HR, and business support. The office's PAs are also included in the pool. The vast majority of these people are based in its Birmingham office, and you will need to provide visible leadership there, especially as it moves through the implementation of its new model for support services and works through the demands of its next price review. You do not need to come with a specific professional background in any one or more of its support service functions. However, the focus within its Fit for the Future programme and across the office on people and organisational development means that experience in this area will be an advantage.

You will work very closely with SLT colleagues leading its Strategy and Planning Programme (John Russell) and its Compliance, Assurance and Improvement Programme (Jenny Block). Its Strategy and Planning Programme establishes the strategic direction of Ofwat and ensures that its work across its portfolio supports that strategy. The Senior Director, Business Improvement will need to understand and support it as it delivers its vision for the sector and its vision for Ofwat. Its Compliance, Assurance and Improvement programme looks at whether it has done what it set out to do in its forward work programme and business plan, whether it is working in line with its operating model, and supports a strong culture of compliance with its legal obligations and those controls it must work within as a non-ministerial government department. Currently, its day to day support functions sit within this programme. Most of the people within your resource pool provide these functions, and you are likely to need to embed changes in the way these services are provided as the way Ofwat works evolves.
