Introduction from Cathryn Ross, Chief Executive

Water is not a dry issue.

The water sector in England and Wales has come a long way in the past 27 years. At privatisation, polluted beaches and rivers and neglected infrastructure meant we were seen as the ‘dirty man of Europe’.

The regulation of this sector was entrusted to the Water Services Regulation Authority (Ofwat) which has maintained a steady hand in driving and incentivising the sector to deliver and to improve. Over the period since privatisation, the water companies have invested more than £120 billion in maintaining and improving services for consumers and the environment. Today, for example, the amount of water lost through leaks is down by about a third since the mid-1990s. In addition, salmon have returned to the River Mersey, once considered one of the most polluted in Europe. All of this has been delivered efficiently too – a litre of tap water, supplied and taken away, costs less than half a penny.

But the world is changing. The water sector faces new problems and very different challenges. In the future, climate change may mean we get more droughts and more floods, making it harder to maintain resilient supplies. Our population is growing, putting more pressure on the water we use. Lifestyle changes have increased our appetite for water in our homes, our work places and our places of leisure. The changing social and economic landscape also means we need to reconsider how business operates and how customers are able to afford their water and sewerage bills.

Ofwat needs to be at forefront of determining and implementing a regulatory system that will protect customers’ interests, drive efficiencies and innovation, enable efficient companies to finance their functions and to ensure that the ‘promises of privatisation’ are delivered. We all need sustainable solutions to these problems.

To do this, Ofwat needs to be at the very top of its game and our legal team makes a significant contribution to our successful delivery. Thank you for your interest in joining Ofwat at what is a very exciting time for us. We look forward to receiving your application.

Cathryn Ross
Ofwat Chief Executive

About Ofwat and the role

Ofwat (the Water Services Regulation Authority) is the economic regulator of the water and wastewater sector in England and Wales. Our role is to help it build trust and confidence in the sector for customers, the environment and wider society. Our strategic priorities include:

- Working with the sector to improve the customer experience in particular by improving resilience, delivering a step change in customer service, maintaining affordability and driving efficiency.
- Improving information and transparency in the sector to hold companies to account.
- Supporting the development and investability of markets, to enable the sector to deliver more for less.
- Securing stakeholder engagement and support for change.
- Ensuring Ofwat has the skills, experience, systems, processes and culture to deliver the strategy.

Our focus as a regulator is on regulating in a pro-market way which means establishing an effective framework that improves information (e.g. quality and visibility); improves buyers' and sellers' ability to transact (e.g. reducing 'transaction costs'); and/or by improving incentives on buyers and sellers to transact efficiently. In addition, we will look to make targeted interventions only, rather than taking a prescriptive, one-size-fits-all approach.

The established Legal resource pool provides highly specialised legal expertise across Ofwat's programmes and projects, supporting the implementation of Ofwat's strategy and objectives in line with its functions and duties. A core element of this role involves advising on regulatory, competition and administrative law in the context of the economic regulation of the water industry. Lawyers are expected to have a wider interest in cross-cutting themes that may impact on the organisation or the industry.

The legal professionals in this pool are lawyers working in a flexible, agile and integrated way coordinating expert advice across the full range of Ofwat projects and programmes and contributing at every stage of policy development. Our lawyers form a dynamic resource pool which contributes widely in the project and stakeholder management of the organisation including managing Ofwat's relationships with external law firms and legal counsel.

The General Counsel is the Strategic Resource Manager for the pool.

Role expectations

With strength in depth in the Legal resource pool at a more senior level, we are recruiting additional resource to support the pool and are keen to attract candidates who may not have as much experience but who are eager to develop their skills in the field of public law, economic regulation and competition law. We have two permanent vacancies and would also consider those with paralegal experience. We are flexible as to the level at which we will recruit depending on the calibre of the candidates.

The work that you'll be involved in every day will be about helping us to deliver our strategy and develop sustainable solutions, delivering outcomes that matter to customers.

Our work is high profile and fast moving. You'll work flexibly across a range of programmes, workstreams and projects, as well as delivering responsively at short-notice in light of changing priorities. The roles we are seeking to fill are vital to the effective provision of legal support to our programmes and projects.

You will also be part of our ongoing and far-reaching programme of culture change and organisational improvement to ensure that the whole of Ofwat is always the best that it can be.

You'll need to quickly gain an understanding of Ofwat's strategy, have a broad appreciation of the context in which Ofwat operates and an overview of all its programmes. With this you'll contribute more effectively to identifying and helping to manage risk and opportunities from a legal perspective.

Within the scope of your responsibilities, you'll be expected to demonstrate good judgement and to exercise it responsibly in line with our strategy and ways of working. In addition, you'll be expected to work effectively in line with the Ofwat programme and project management tool kit.
